not lead to the shutdown of the local grid, he explained. Under normal circumstances, equipment at the Bethel substation would automatically sense that the line was intact and restore power to the grid.

But this summer, crews are working on power poles replacing existing insulators with heavier-duty ones. While the work goes on, the automatic reconnect device at the substation has been shut off in order to not have the system start up automatically while a crewman may be working on a cable. Thus, in case of a power interruption caused by a branch, the entire grid must be checked before the power is turned back on,

The upgrading of the insulators on the poles from the substation, down Cross Street and out the Rumford Road, is in preparation for increasing the voltage capability of the system. Whereas presently the maximum voltage being carried is 12,000 volts, this will be increased to 34,000 volts in the fall.

The increased capacity of the system is necessary, Mr. Eliot explained, due to Battle shaping up over hydro plan at Lake Umbagog

Environmentalists are preparing to fight the recently announced hydroelectric project on Lake Umbagog. Representatives from the New Hampshire Audubon Society and the Conservation Law Foundation-a Boston-based group-are expected to be present at the first public meeting on the project, in Errol, N.H., tomorrow night (Thurs-

Last month, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission granted Swift River/Hafslund Inc., of Portland, a three-year permit for economic and environmental studies of the project, which envisions generating 20 megawatts of electricity from coursing waters of Umbagog and the Rapid River through a 17-foot-diameter, three-mile tunnel to twin turbines. The hydro project would be the fifth-largest in Maine and would replace 140,000 barrels of oil a year.

Environmentalists argue that the long tunnel would ruin Lake Umbagog and the Rapid River.

The developers have pointed out that no construction work or changing of the ecology will be done during the threeyear study period authorized by the federal permit.

Following tomorrow night's meeting in Errol, N.H., there will be a similar public meeting in Andover on Aug. 7—also

In order to meet the demands of the skiway, and maintain sufficient service for the entire Bethel area, the voltage will be increased, he explained. Larger cables to carry the heavier voltage will be strung in the fall. While crews are working on the poles, and while branches are likely to fall against power cables, the prospects are good for further power outages during the summer, Mr. Eliot predicted.

Opinions

Posturing continues at Boise

Anyone who expected an early settlement of the strike at Boise is likely to be disappointed.

Strikes are like wars: they occur when diplomatic negotiations fail to resolve an issue on which two opposing sides have strong positions. And, like wars, it takes some time for each side to demonstrate its toughness and to get a taste of how tough the opposition is. After some battles, both sides generally sit down and try harder to negotiate a settlement to their argument.

At Boise, the time for sitting down again has apparently not yet been reached.

Talks could have continued for an extra 10 days after the present contract with the paperworkers expired June 30. The company agreed to the idea, proposed by the federal mediator, but the union membership overwhelmingly did not.

This week-again under prodding by the federal mediator-the union said it was ready to put some counter-offers on the table. But the company said it was finished negotiating and was going to hire a new workforce.

Does this mean all-out war, with the only avenue towards peace an unconditional surrender by the workers?

Not likely. While Boise officials want to get a little more control over their workforce—and rightfully so—they also rely on the expertise of the present workforce and the goodwill of the community in which they are located.

A fight to the finish is not the solution to the problem.

The fact is that no one who runs a business would agree to the sort of work rules prevailing at Boise. Under those rules, a worker is hired to do a certain job. If he reports to work and there is no work that day in his classification, he does nothing, and gets paid for doing nothing.

Workers should expect to work if they expect to get paid, and managers should be able to tell a worker to do any job that needs doing. Honest work is not demeaning. Taking money for doing nothing is. With the present workforce working full-time, instead of sitting idly part of the time, fewer workers will be needed to run the mill. Management has assured the paperworkers that, despite this fact, no one will be laid off during the period of the new contract.

Management should go further and tell its workers that their jobs will be secure as long as they work full-time and whole-heartedly. The workforce can still be trimmed by not hiring replacements as people

While the general idea of flexibility in job assignments is admirable, the same cannot be said of the lack of restrictions on arbitrary work assignments. Strikers complain that the proposed contract would allow managers to assign them to lower-paying jobs than their classifications would warrant. This is patently unfair. If you hire a man with certain skills, you pay him for those skills. If—on any given day—you need him to do a different job requiring lesser skills, you are still bound to pay him what you originally promised him.

Boise management was asked to defend this aspect of their contract proposal and declined to do so.

As the two sides continue to spar, it should become apparent to the striking workers that they will have to get used to the idea of giving eight hours of work for eight hours of pay. And it should become apparent to management that they need their experienced workers, and they need them to come back to work as proud people, not beaten

Lee Iacocca may or may not be a viable presidential candidate, but he has the right idea when he says a successful negotiation is one in which both sides feel they've won something.

Notes from Adult & Community Education

The summer session of the SAD #44 Adult Learning Center began on Tuesday, July 8 at Telstar Regional High School. The Learning Center will be open each Tuesday evening from 6:30-9:30 for adults who wish to do GED (High School Equivalency) preparation or testing, as well as for those who would like brushup work in reading, writing or math skills. Merrill Bittner is the Learning Center instructor this summer, and will also be available to assist Learning Center students in planning for further education and job-seeking skills. Adult Education Director Cathy Newell will be in charge of the GED testing during the summer session. Adults who are interested in joining the Learning Center may drop in during the Tuesday evening hours, or phone the Adult Education office, 824-2780 during the day. Instruction at the Learning Center is individualized, so that students work on areas that need improvement and are able to progress at their own rate.

At the July 8 session of the Learning Center, Reginald Westleigh passed the GED exam, and will be awarded his equivalency diploma with a few weeks. Two other students are within one test of GED completion and spent the session doing additional work on writing skills. A new student joined the class and took the GED Practice Test to identify areas that needed further study. Director Cathy Newell commented that the SAD #44 Learning Center emphasized individual attention and is strongly committed to meeting the individual needs of each student. She added that day-time GED testing is avalable by appointment by calling the office, 824-2780.

Society launches 1986 endowment campaign

Howard W. Cole of Bethel, chairman of the 1986 Endowment Campaign Committee, has announced that the Bethel Historical Society will attempt to raise a record $8,500 for the society's endowment before Jan. 1, 1987. Mr. Cole, retired president of W.J. Wheeler of South Paris, has successfully directed the society's three previous annual campaigns which have raised over $20,000 for the endowment from several hundred businesses and individuals. A life member of the society, Mr. Cole has been active in fund raising for various organ-izations including Stephens Memorial Hospital of Norway. Assisting Mr. Cole in this fund raising effort will be society members John B. Head of the Investment Committee, Barbara D. Brown of the Membership Committee, Alden T. Kennett, society president and E. Louise Lincoln, society bookkeeper and assistant treasurer. Already interest from this fund has begun to finance a small portion of the society's increasingly critical staffing needs. Contributions are being solicited from all society members and friends and will be accepted in any amount.

The Bethel Historical Society, a nonprofit, tax-exempt corporation, is currently celebrating its 20th year (founded in 1966). With over 650 members it is also Oxford County's only full-time historical agency. It operates the Dr. Moses Mason House which includes a period house museum devoted to understanding the life and times of the town's most distinguished citizen in the 19th century. Its collections contains materials of every description relating to western Maine and the White Mountains; its ac-

He did say, however, "There are restrictions (in the contract) on reassignment of folks in their expertise areas.'

Union president Barker indicated that his negotiating team would propose further restrictions on the flexibility

Other aspects of the so-called final of-

Maine Central Railroad, in its dispute with striking Railroad Maintenance Way Employees, recently hired new workers to replace strikers but then was forced by the federal government to rehire the strikers during a cooling-off period. When the railroad refused to rehire all the strikers, a federal judge ordered them to do so.

Boise spokesman Sam Donaldson said company management is aware of the troubles Maine Central ran into, but noted that railroads are governed by different labor rules than other companies. "That's apples and oranges," he contended.

He emphasized, "We're not firing anyone." As for the workers who refuse to come back to work because their union is on strike: "That's their choice," he

The board approved a change in the three year (July 1, 1986-June 30, 1989) tuition agreement between SAD #44 and the town of Upton. The approved change removes SAD #44's responsibility for the transportation of Upton pupils. It was felt that due to the number of Upton students involved, substantial savings could be realized by the town assuming the responsibility for student transportation.

The company has brought in workers from other mills, as well as a catering service from Texas and armed guards from Pennsylvania.

The paperworkers have brought in fellow unionists from the Boise plant in Vermont and are looking to bring in a professional media relations person.

Picketers are standing in front of 11 gates at the plant around the clock. One gate is being left unattended to allow contracfors to come and go freely. And the railroad line into the plant is not being picketed, at the request of the Brotherhood of Maintenance Way Employees, so the Maine Central trains can go in and out of the mill.

Company officials say the plant is running at half-capacity, or about 800 tons daily-a claim disputed by union officials, who say the two papermaking machines in use cannot produce that much paper.

The union is planning a march tomorrow morning (Thursday). Billed as a 'Mothers' March," the event is designed to show support for the union's position. It will step off from the American Legion parking lot sometime after 9:30

Ms. Damon is confident that liability insurance will be found before the September opening of the Head Start centers, but, as for now, "We're still in a crisis.'

She had hoped to be able to get insurance through the state insurance commission's pool, after companies that had been insuring the centers declined to renew the policies.

The problem began a year ago. Until then, Head Start had been paying $1,200 annually to cover all four centers. Then the insurance company, The Hartford Group, terminated the policy.

A new policy was obtained from Penn-American Insurance, costing $4,600 annually. Penn-American declined to renew it after June 30, however.

The state commission had earlier said it would be able to find coverage, at a cost of $6,500 a year-for just 125

Head Start directors at the state level are in the midst of a survey, trying to find insurance companies willing to sell liability insurance to the pre-school centers. "We're still scouting around,"

Ms. Damon said. But she is very aware that the September start-up date is quickly approaching. "We've got to have something by then," she said.

Ah, the joys of summer! The nice warm weather has been so welcome after all the chilly, windy weather (back to that again today, Friday).

Due to the holiday, other commitments and I new job, I ran out of time so didn't get my column in last week. I'll try to catch up this week.

A special thank you to Arvilla Robinson, who took the time to send a copy of Turner's calendar of events for their bicentennial. Sounded like fun and I'm sorry we were unable to get to it. Thanks for thinking of us.

On Sunday, June 29, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hutchins enjoyed a trip up over the "height-of-the-land," through Oquossoc and Wilson's Mills to Errol, N.H., where they had supper at a restaurant and then home by way of Upton and East B Hill. Bernard drowned a few worms in an attempt to catch some fish-(no luck). When we reached the "height-of-theland" the wind was blowing hard and it was chilly. We began picking wild strawberries at the roadside from there through Wilson's Mills and gathered better than a quart of large yummy berries. We were surprised by a young bull moose who decided to trot down the road ahead of us for s stretch. A few miles further down the road a cow moose and her calf were feeding in a mucky ditch beside the road. A pick-up truck was stopped there prior to our arrival. When I stopped, Mother Moose looked at first one vehicle, they retreated in the thicket where they couldn't be seen. They were all so shiny and looked real healthy. We ran into (and out of) a thundershower-hailstorm that left both sides of the road white with hailstones and littered with beaten tree leaves, seeds and small braches. Over the distance, the wind had blown down three whole trees. It was reported hail fell in Andover at Charlie Jodrey's that afternoon also.

to watch than a circus, at times. There was only the one pair of gold finches to start, but now there are three females and two males so wonder if the first pair's little ones are coming to the feeder with their parents. The females look a little smaller and not as yellow as the first mother we saw. Chickadees are still coming at times and the other day when Russell went to fill the feeder, one of the chickadees landed on the feeder, took a seed as it sat on the steps, and flew off, not minding Russell being right there at all. Shows how friendly they are. We also have a pair of mourning doves who seem to be here a lot to feed and Russell has put out a little cracked corn for them but I can. The garden looks better than it did and hope it continues to. I'd like to see the freezer full come fall as they are so tight with food stamps that one would starve on what they give. I was worried that the peas out front wouldn't produce any peas for us as they weren't growing good but they are doing better and have many pods coming on them as well as a lot of blossoms. Beets are looking good and will be ready for greens soon. It takes a lot of work to have a good garden, but the vegetables taste so much better

We have enjoyed the birds this sum-

Independence Day and cloudy here. The sun was shining some when we first got up but didn't last too long. Had thought I'd do a washing but changed my mind and sat and watched TV instead. The pictures from New York with all the boats in the harbor were spectacular. I'm afraid it wouldn't have been so pretty on our old black and white TV, but thanks to the Christmas gift from my daughter and husband, Russell and I really en-Joyed the show. Only thing I was sorry for was that they didn't show all the tall ships so we could see them. Oh well, can't have everything and we don't. Just have to be grateful for what we have.

It has been a busy week around here as I have had my granddaughters until yesterday afternoon when their mother came to get them. She had a meeting in Orono for education that she had to attend so I have had the girls. Just wish my legs were in better shape for me to keep up with them as I love to have them with me if I feel good. One doesn't realize what it can be like to not be able to get around well until it happens. Not a nice experience I can tell you. Guess I am lucky I can go as well as I can but we always wish for more.

Russell has been working in the garden whenever he can and went strawberrying one day with Grace and Lawrence and their daughter, Hilda. We had eaten what fresh berries he and Peggy picked when they went to Poland, so he thought we should have a few more. They have sure tasted good.

I had the girls outside when I could as they love to go out but couldn't go as much as Courtney would have liked. She would be outside all the time if she could. Kariann likes to go out and swing, also. It was a chore to keep them both swinging at the same time but did the best I could with the swings side by side.

Lawrence has been waiting for the cutter bar for his machine to come to cut grass and it finally came after a long wait and many phone calls. However, it doesn't work as it should. Russell says the belt isn't as long as it should be to work well so Lawrence will try something I am sure until he gets it to work. Peggy headed for Massachusetts on Monday to be with a lady there for awhile. She doesn't expect to be home for a couple of weeks, anyway, Hilda Taylor went to Massachusetts for a few days to visit some friends and see a lady who wanted to visit with her. She left on Thursday.

Russell had been invited to go to West Paris Grange on Thursday night but drove me to a chiropractor instead as I needed an adjustment. Had been to my regular doctor on Wednesday morning but lifting the smallest granddaughter didn't help my keep my back in good over from last winter and my foster daughter, Helen Strout, had given him Summer arrived in all its glory a few some, so he has kept the feeders full. We days late according to the calendar. July 8 proved a hot day in our area. The thermometers at my house registered 90 degrees. It's the first time they have been the same this year. Usually they are 20 degrees apart. One is out back and the other one by the front door. Tuesday is fast becoming the same kind of day as I am writing this.

Lloyd Merrifield is mowing the Davis farm this week.

Thursday afternoon Esther Davis took me to Lewiston to the doctor for treatment on my eye. Saturday afternoon we were over to Turner's anniversary. They really put on a big show for two days. Monday noon I took dinner with Esther. That's all our doings this week.

Some are enjoying the beach this week. The weather sure calls them all. Mrs. Leon Poland Jr. has gone to and we open the back door and they are Florida to visit her daughter Leilani. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Poland Sr. have been putting in 220 cable for the stove and a refrigerator in the community building. They also have repaired the toilets out back. They left them unlocked. The first thing someone took the comfort of them and also walked off with the two rolls of toilet paper which were placed there for their convenience. That's what I call going some stealing toilet paper. How low can people get?

Buster has a sale at the community building the last part of the week now. They would love to have anyone drop in and see their wares. Ernest Bradbury, who has been in Germany teaching, has returned to the United States. He called on Raymond Miclon and family Saturday. They are close friends, he having taught some time with Raymond before he departed for Germany.

I had never been in the Bell Hill Church or the Naples Grange Hall, but both were nice, especially the old church that I have heard of so many times. It was nice to be able to go into an old style church with closed-in pews. We left the reception a little early as Peggy and Russell were planning to attend the dance in Locke Mills that night. I stayed home in the evening and watched TV. They both said they enjoyed the dance and I am glad they did. They always meet many friends and that makes it more of a pleasure.

Woodstock Historical Society Here is a description by Charles Dickens of one 19th century lady as seen by another-

"She was a good, good woman! She went to church three time every Sunday, and to morning prayers on Wednesdays and Fridays, and to lectures whenever there were lectures; and never missed. She was handsome; and if she had ever smiled, would have been...like an angel; but she never smiled. She was always grave and strict. She was so very good herself, I thought, that the badness of other people made her frown all her life... I felt so poor, so trifling, and so far off, that I never could be unrestrained with her-no, could never even love her as I wished."

Much thanks to those who have watched the museum so far-Annie Crockett, the Noyes family, Eva B. Twitchell, and Kay Billings, and the Billings family. The society is planning a food sale at Littlefield Beach soon.

This is Sunday morning July 6. Silences surround our home. This is the time to be aware of gentle sounds; the turning of a windmill outside, the ticking of a clock, the fluttering of leaves, a creaking bough, while out among the weeds is a boat with a silent fisherman doing what he likes, roughing it, as Mother Nature meant it to be. He just sits there idly, as the waves crawl by gently rocking, rocking. He enjoys the crisp, balmy freshness of the morning. The multiplicity of green colors are everywhere. The rains have left the earth succulent. The slugs are especially happy. The breeze softly flows through my garden carrying the fragrance of roses. My foxgloves, blooming tall, are visited by buzzing bees, while a butterfly alights to sip the nectar of the mockorange bush.

What a way to start a summer day! As the day progressed I worked among my flowers pulling weeds or working on my lawns. I noted the softness of clover and recalled the poem by that name written by James Whitcomb Riley. His statue stood in our schoolroom in my childhood days. I stopped to observe a Monarch butterfly sipping sweetness from a clover blossom. No butterfly is more familiar than this one. Its flight is slow and sailing. Thus through the day I captured the essence of summer and although I could not go far I enjoyed my summer view.

Most families were busy and enjoying the holiday weekend. All cottages on our road had visitors.

Our callers were Ann Holt, Robert Holt and family, Windsor; Milton and Eleanor Inman, Fred and Rena Curtis, and a brief call from Frank Curtis, local; Carl "d Lettie Brooks, West Paris.

Monday, July 7, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Penley Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card, Mr. and Mrs. Root Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Record celebrated birthdays at Big Rock Farm with Joe Kalinowski as host. The usual feast with birthday cakes and gifts was enjoyed. It was so beautiful there and a lovely breeze on a hot day. Joe Vatcher went to Danvers, Mass.,

to visit his mother Tuesday. Nephews Cornie and Daniel McAuliffe went with him and Danny stayed for a visit with his aunt Helen Berthold and family. Joe and Cornie stopped at the fish and animal farm at Gray on the way home and Cornie liked that, Harlan and Faye Abbott and her parents went to Rangeley July 10 for the weekend. Faye will go to St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston and have surgery on July 16. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Hummingbirds are working full time in Joe Vatcher's flower garden and they enjoy watching them flit and fly all afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Abbott spent the first week of July at Rangeley fishing and they had rain, sleet, snow and hail along with bad winds. They got the fish but nearly froze. Her parents accompanied them and they had a good time. Had hot biscuits every day.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reidy, Tyngsboro, Mass., came July 4 to their trailer and returned home Sunday morning. J a retired police officer so he had to w

Sunday night. Lots of traffic returning home. They will come July 12 for two weeks and Norma's mother, Mrs. Pearl Clough of Deltona, Fla., will come with them. Joe Vatcher had picked a tray of pretty red strawberries and had them in the freezer for them to take back to Massachusetts for that sweet tooth. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vatcher rode over the Kancamagus highway July 3. There was heavy traffic everywhere. In North Conway they were bumper to bumper for one hour. It rained heavy all afternoon. They counted many, many condominiums on the trip. Lenwood "Pete" Andrews called on Joe and Eveline Vatcher one afternoon. He Anyone, or any company, that would like to sponsor one of the Boy Scouts to a week at Scout Camp, may do so by contacting Scoutmaster Ray Harrington at 824-2698 or Assistant Scoutmaster Dewaine Craig at 824-2185. The cost this year has almost doubled to the amount of $50 per boy. This is an opportunity for a boy to learn new and exciting scout skills, as well as earn advancement requirements. These boys work hard for that week and come away with a lot of knowledge that they use in helping fellow scouts advance.

Circus delights crowds

The Old Tyme American Circus delighted the appreciative crowds that attended their performances at Telstar Regional High School on June 29 and 30, with a full program of exciting, skillful and entertaining acts.

A short circus parade preceded the Sunday, June 29, show featuring elephants, clowns, acrobats, and two Bethel fire trucks loaded with children dressed in colorful clown costumes.

The sudden appearance of a violent wind and rain storm Sunday afternoon provided an anxious moment and the circus management wisely cleared the tent as a precautionary measure. However, following a delay, during which time weather conditions improved, the show continued to its conclusion.

Winners of the children's clown contest, presented by the Bethel IGA Store included grand prize, Jaime Grover; girl clown, Jennifer Bowie; boy clown, Justin

NTL enters fourth week

The NTL Institute summer conferences are continuing into their fourth week with a group of six new programs: A basic Human Interaction Laboratory, Dealing with Difficult People at Work, Facilitating and Managing Complex System Change, Managing Conflict: Interpersonal and Organizational, Integrating Training and Consultation, and Centering for Personal and Professional Development

The first four of these are one-week programs, while the last two will continue into next week.

Sunrise Seminars were presented on Tuesday and Wednesday by Kathie Dannemiller and Ronald Lippitt. The presenters and topics for the remainder of the week will be:

• Thursday, July 17: Jane Moosbruker on "The Leadership Dilemma in Developing Small Groups, or Toto-What to Do? What to Do?"

· Friday, July 18: Luis Morales-Saenz on "To Help or Not?"

· Saturday, July 19: Charles Seashore on "Moving On." These 45-minute staff presentations take place most weekday mornings in the Maine Room of the NTL conference building at 7:30 a.m. and are open to interested persons in the Bethel area. In addition to the already full schedule of workshops and Sunrise Seminars, participants have the option of attending special interest groups that meet at 4:30 p.m. several afternoons. This week the meetings are to be held in the Bingham House and will cover these topics:

 Wednesday: People of Color; · Thursday: What's Going On with Women Here and Abroad?

· Friday: The Changing Role of Men and Women in Organizations. As in the case of the Sunrise Seminars, interested area residents are also invited to attend these meetings. Call the NTL office, at 824-2151, for information on all

Right-of-way widened on skiway access road of these activities.

Newry selectmen met with Sunday River Ski Resort officials yesterday morning (Tuesday) for a first-hand look at the right-of-way of the skiway access road above the intersection with the Sunday River Road.

It was agreed by all concerned to widen the right-of-way to 60 feet. Approval for the widening was granted by the abutting landowners Steve Wight and Don Bennett, Mr. Bennett indicated he may request the town to discontinue the road leading into his home (across from the Sundary River Ski Touring Center), and selectmen indicated they would be in favor of such a move. The state Department of Transportation notified Newry officials this week that funding of $90,000 has been approved for the renair and re-location of a nortion of the skiway access road. The town will put in $45,000 towards the project, and the skiway will put in another $45,000 or more. The work will be done by the skiway, with the rebuilding expected to begin within a couple of weeks.

DICK VIOLETTE, CHAIRMAN OF THE MERRIMACK COUNTY TELEPHONE CO., in Contoocook, N.H., was in Bryant Pond Saturday, demonstrating old telephone equipment to the hundreds of visitors at the Grange Hall. The exhibit was held in conjunction with the opening of the crank telephone museum. The Woodstock Historical Society also showed off its old switchboard and had showings of a film on the old Bryant Pond system, believed to have been the last operational system in the country when it closed a few years ago.

Rotary Club notes

The Bethel Rotary Club held its regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Sudbury Inn on Tuesday, July 15. Visiting Rotarians and guests joining with the group this week were Bill Lowthers, Boonton, N.J.; Chas. Feld, Marco Island, Fla.; El Stausebach, Wilmington, Del.; Joe Reidy, Tyngsboro, Mass.; Harry Laughy, Tilton/Northfield, Del.; Paul Ganson, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The attendance contest is winding down and as in all contests there are winners and losers. In this case it doesn't look good for team #2. Remember next week's regular Rotary meeting will be held at the Bethel Inn Beach House on Songo Pond at 5 p.m. The contest losers will be picking up the tab. For you losers, the only consolation for you might be to identify the team members that let you down and "hold them under" for about three minutes.

A new attendance contest has been mentioned which would incorporate some of the rules of Ed Quinn's winter club-in other words a small cash donation assessed on those not making up meetings. Nothing firmed up on this yet, so don't get excited.

The final Mollyockett Day planning was discussed at the meeting. Every available Rotarian will be busy from Friday through Sunday getting the job done.

The program chairman, Roy Silver, introduced his guest speaker, Dan Hart, guidance counselor at Telstar Regional High School. Dan talked about his job and experiences as a student and
